

TYCEC Education Request

The ICF's Torstenson Youth Conservation Education Center's mission is to cultivate future environmental stewards and foster responsible youth engagement with, and education on, the natural resources. At the Center, youth programs are designed to promote and support a wide range of conservation education activities. You can provide your own programs or ask our staff to help plan your outing.

Our new mobile Learning Center, the Torstenson Education Station (TES) is also available to visit organizations throughout Illinois. Our mobile station is equipped with all types of equipment - binoculars, GPS units, fishing and archery equipment, hand lenses, skulls and pelts and so much more.

The TES has been designed to support the TYCEC conservation education activities. Using the equipment listed, and more, we will work with group leaders, teachers, and instructors, to provide opportunities and experiences and hands activities, for small groups of youth (up to 20 usually) that will stimulate an awareness and appreciation for our natural resources, environment and the need to become good stewards of nature.
